Science to Record Home Habits of Bird which Adorns Gold Piece.

IS FEATHERED ARISTOCRAT Aged Couple with Aerie on Lake Erie Also Has Winter

Home.

By WILLIAM J. HUSKE,

CLEVELAND, March 18.-And how science is going to record and give to the world in its minutest details the housekeeping habits, the love secrets and the family life of the American eagle, the noble bird whose likeness adorns our coins, and whose fighting spirit is believed to make the people whose virtues it personifies unbestable in war.

Nest on Lake Erie. A huge engle's nest, located beween this city and Lorain, on Lake Erie, near the training camp of Johnny Kilbane, champion featherweight boxer, will be placed under close observation this spring, summer and fall by members of the faculty of Western Reserve University, and what they discover about the life habits of the eagles will later be given to the world, it was announced.

The nest—or, rather, nests, for the eagle is an aristocrat among birds and maintains a winter and birds and maintains a winter and summer home—is a huge affair twenty feet in diameter in the topmost crotch of a huge tree in a plot of virgin forest about half a mile from one of the most heavily traveled roads in the Middle West. The summer home, where the young are reared, is the more pretentious, however, in this respect differing from human folk. If a nice young lamb can be caught in the talons of the eagle its wool is used to line the next where the young are reared, but no such comforts adorn the home of father and mother eagle during the winter months.

Birds Make Inspection. The pair which are to be observed the present season have spent their mers in the one nest and their any drug store. winters in another about four miles listant. Aiready, it is said, although distant. Aiready, it is said, although the migration to summer quarters is still some time distant the old birds have made a tour of inspection to see if things are as they left them last fall.

Before the migration actually occurs, however, the summer home will be given a thorough spring housecleaning. Bones of chickens, lambs and other prey brought to the nest last summer to feed the voracious young will be thrown out, new ideas in nest architecture will be tried out, and generally things will be made comfortable for Mrs. Eagle, who will not leave the nest after the eggs are laid until the young eaglets are finally kicked out to shift for are finally kicked out to shift for themselves in the fall. The faculty of Western Reserve plans to get a complete story of the life of the family. In a large elm tree, not quite as tall as that in which the eagles have their summer home, the men of science are now establishing a camp. The home of the observers is about eight rods distant from the eagles' nest. A steel ladder has been put in place, and at the present time carpenters are at work in the treetop building a bourse which will be large anough a house which will be large enough to house and care for those spying on the eagles twenty-four hours

Few Years Make Big Difference In Bathing Fads

WHEN David R. Forgan, president of the National City Bank, was a boy, girls who wanted to bathe would enter a carriage drawn by a blind horse and driven by a blind man, he told members of the Bank Club. "They would disrobe in the carriage," he said. "The blind man would drive them out waist deep into the surf. As proof of the march of progress, go to any of the beaches now and see how different it all is."
